

Economic gains a political smokescreen—Reagan

MIAMI (AP) — Republican challenger Ronald Reagan, wrapping up a Florida presidential primary campaign he said is "building a real head of steam," accused President Ford today of yielding to election year pressure to perk up the economy.

The former California governor was making a four-city swing in the state before flying to Champaign, Ill., to hunt votes in that state's March 16 primary.

Reagan told a Miami news conference he does not expect to lose in tomorrow's GOP balloting, but "if it should happen, it'll be a close race and I don't think it will make any difference" in the competition for the Republican presidential nomination.

Reagan said that whatever happens in the primaries he has no intention of dropping his challenge to Ford unless and until the President has enough committed votes to win the nomination.

He said he doesn't expect that to happen before Republicans convene in Kansas City on Aug. 16. "The final fight will be waged on the convention floor," Reagan said.

On the economy, Reagan said he is not questioning the figures that show a decline in unemployment and in the rate of inflation. But he said, "They are the result of artificial stimulants to the economy."

He said that the Democratic Congress is basically to blame, but he also said that Ford is not doing enough to stop it.

Reagan once again cited the experience of the last presidential campaign when the economy improved during the political year and then soured after the voting.

"I think both in the case of President Nixon, he yielded to the pressure also, and I think President Ford has yielded to the pressure."

But he provided no specifics. When asked for a bill of particulars, Reagan replied:

"In most of the programs that have been adopted there has been no real effort to control inflation by curbing the size of government ..."

Reagan said the President should put himself in an adversary position and go over the head of Congress to appeal to the American people for action to control spending, cut the deficit and thus fight inflation.

Ford and Reagan agreed that the Florida race is close. "I am going to hope to win, but I realize it is a horse race, a very close race here in Florida," the former California governor said Sunday on the NBC program "Meet the Press."

"I don't think that in a close horse race, it could be a loser for a challenger," Reagan said, arguing as he did in New Hampshire that coming close is enough when running against an incumbent president.

Ford won the leadoff New Hampshire primary by one percentage point.

But Reagan's managers had been forecasting a landslide early in the Florida campaign. L.E. Thomas, his state chairman, began by predicting a 2-1 Reagan victory, but more recently he has been urging his candidate to get tough with Ford or face the possibility of defeat.

And Reagan, who earlier insisted he wouldn't criticize another Republican, seemed to be heeding the advice. As he wrapped up his Florida campaign and prepared to move on to Illinois and its primary March 16, Reagan criticized administration foreign policy and challenged Ford on the economy.

He recalled the economic upturn that came with Richard M. Nixon's re-election campaign in 1972. "And then, in 1973 the roof fell in," he said. "Only this time inflation was 12 per cent and unemployment was 10 per cent."

"Now, I fear very much that we may be in exactly the same position. We have been resorting to recession emergency measures. Nothing has been done yet to fight the real cause of this, which is inflation."

"Now, when the roof falls in again, after the '76 election, as a result of it, is it going to double again? Is this time the inflation going to be 25 per cent? Is the unemployment going to be double the 10 per cent we had the last time?"

Reagan said the real villain is inflation, and the cause of that is deficit spending.

Ford said in a White House interview with 28 Florida broadcasters that such evidence of economic improvement, plus progress in foreign policy, helped him close the gap with Reagan in Florida.

SOMETHING TO TOAST

Thirty years ago, six Polish Jews who survived Nazi death camps were married by a U.S. Army chaplain in Munich, Germany. They met again in New Orleans Sunday to toast 30 years of a better life. They are, from left, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weil, Long Island, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lasoski, New Orleans; and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Preston, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Ohio youths were on way to a dance

MARIA STEIN, Ohio (AP) — A car plowed into about 50 high school pupils standing at a rural intersection Sunday night after they halted their car caravan on the way to a dance. Eight of them died, and four others were injured, authorities said.

In the farming village of Minster, where the young people went to school, church bells tolled for 45 minutes today.

"Everybody's walking around here like they are in a stupor. I don't think anybody realizes yet just what happened," said Bill Poeppelman, police chief.

Tom Feldman, postmaster in the village of 2,500 about six miles from the accident scene, flew the post office flag at half staff.

"Nobody is really saying a whole lot about it," said Feldman. "They're just kind of somber and very sad. In a small town like this, when you lose eight people, it's hard to accept."

Lt. John Schlosser, commander of the highway patrol post at nearby St. Marys, gave this account:

had stopped just to talk and see where they were going to go," Schlosser said. "That's what they said."

"They had been stopped headed west," he said. "There was a four-way stop sign. The nine vehicles came to a stop at the intersection and the passengers got out. All nine cars stopped on the roadway."

Six of the pupils died late Sunday and two others died today.

The dead were identified as Ken Sommers, 15, and Scott Westerheide, 15, both of whom died today; Michael R. Kemper, 17; Anthony E. Kemper, 17; Lester R. Ranly, 16; Becky Moorman, 15; Joy Brandeweide, 14, and Barbara Olding, 14.

The identities of the injured pupils were not known.

Slight chance of rain and winds tonight

A storm from the north may bring some rain to the valley tonight and Tuesday morning, the weatherman says.

Predictions call for a 20 per cent chance of precipitation, but the National Weather Service says the storm will be of a short duration.

Daytime temperatures in the valley will be slightly cooler, with highs near the 60s.

The storm is expected to bring some gusty winds to the area. The forecast is for fair weather for the rest of the week.

High court opens door wider to citizen suits against IRS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today lowered, for the second time in five months, the bar against suits by citizens to prevent collection of taxes by the government.

The court ruled six to two that in some cases the taxpayer may sue unless the government can prove the facts upon which the tax assessment against him was based.

The decision upheld a ruling of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington requiring the Internal Revenue Service to show why it suspected Samuel Shapiro, a native of Israel who was living in New York, of being a narcotics dealer.

The IRS made a jeopardy assessment against Shapiro in 1973 for $93,000 in 1970 and 1971 income taxes. At the time Shapiro was under indictment for securities fraud in Israel and due to be extradited.

Shapiro filed suit. The IRS contended the suit was barred by the Federal Anti-Injunction Act, first enacted in 1867 and designed to prohibit a taxpayer from suing to halt tax collections.

Shapiro's attorneys argued that the law does not bar a taxpayer from requiring the government to produce some proof in cases in which the taxpayer has denied the government's claim and produced corroborating evidence.

In an opinion by Justice Byron R. White, the Supreme Court said legal precedents do not support "a proposition that the tax collector may constitutionally seize a taxpayer's assets without showing some basis for the seizure under circumstances in which the seizure will injure the taxpayer in a way that cannot be adequately remedied by a tax court judgment in his favor."

On Oct. 15, the court held that a taxpayer may sue to prevent collections when the IRS attempts to collect his tax in midyear without giving him a detailed notice of his deficiency.

Justices Harry A. Blackmun and William H. Rehnquist said that by this decision and today's ruling "the court now has traveled a long way down the road that emasculates the antiinjunction act, and down the companion pathway that blunts the strict requirements" for exceptions to it.

"The court has taken this ... tack, I suspect, as a response to what it aims to be administrative excesses with respect to suspected narcotics operatives who also are, or should be, taxpayers," Blackmun wrote for the two dissenters.

"Whether all this will prove to be stultifying or embarrassing to the collection of the revenues in a more temperate and untroubled time, I do not know. Perhaps, up to a point, the Congress will come to the rescue," he said.

Israel lashes U.S. deal with Egypt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz today charged that the American supply of military equipment to Egypt is "a dangerous course of action" that could lead to new confrontation in the Middle East.

In an unusually strong statement by an ambassador, Dinitz said the decision by the United States to sell military goods to Egypt could cause "a dangerous imbalance in the Middle East."

Dinitz made his criticism at a convention of B'nai B'rith women. His public attack on the American arms arrangement with Egypt is an escalation of Israeli protests over the deal.

Dinitz has met with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to protest the sales and his appearance today was an attempt to martial Jewish opinion against the necessary congressional approval before the transactions can be completed.

Dinitz said he understood and approved the U.S. effort to win influence in the Arab world.

Rubber workers vow world strike

CLEVELAND (AP) — Armed with a worldwide strike threat, the United Rubber Workers began contract talks today with the nation's four biggest tire makers.

The union's international president, Peter Bommarito, said recently that Italian, French and other affiliates have agreed to strike if the 70,000-member American union calls a walkout.

Current contracts with the Big Four — Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., B.F. Goodrich Co. and Uniroyal Inc. — expire April 20.

San Dimas, Claremont, Walnut

Three valley cities will elect new mayors Tuesday

City councils in three valley communities will select mayors Tuesday night when they meet to canvass last week's municipal votes.

Mayors will be chosen in San Dimas, Claremont and Walnut.

In five other communities where the mayors are elected by the public at large the councils will pick mayors pro tem to serve in the absence of the mayor.

The meetings, required by law a week after the municipal election to provide an official count of the voting, are generally routine. But this year there will be considerable interest in some of the communities.

In Chino, where incumbent Mayor Bob McLeod beat challenger Robert Bertschinger by 19 votes, the council is expected to set the date for a recount of the votes.

In San Dimas, where two challengers, Terry Dipple and Phil Wax, running on a reform ticket, beat incumbents Keith Brogan and Ray Miracle, the position of Mayor James Lough is in jeopardy.

In Claremont, where Bertye Smith is seeking a third one-year term as mayor, Councilman Frank Hungerford said he also is interested in that position.

In those communities as well as in La Verne, Ontario, Upland and Montclair, city clerks will administer the oath of office to municipal officials who were elected last Tuesday.

Pomona, a charter city, will not hold elections until next year.

Diagnosis, treatment cited

Research shows child cancer deaths falling

CHICAGO (AP) — More children are being cured of cancer today as a result of better diagnosis and treatment of the disease, says a Milwaukee researcher.

Dr. Donald Pinkel, a Medical College of Wisconsin pediatrician, surveyed recent advances in childhood cancer treatment in the March 8 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

He points out that the diagnosis of cancer in children in the past was accompanied by a "fatalistic outlook."

But he also says improved diagnostic and treatment techniques "have led to increasing periods of disease-free survival and probable cure for greater proportions of children."

"Although only 1 per cent of cancer occurs in children, the potential number of productive years of life to be saved by eliminating childhood and adolescent cancer deaths is nearly equal to that to be saved by eradicating adult cancer mortality," Pinkel said.

The American Cancer Society says cancer is second only to accidents as the cause of death for children under 15.

While about 3,500 children under 15 now die yearly of cancer, the ACS said, this is a "notable reduction" from the peak of 4,615 who died of cancer a decade ago.

In his survey report, Pinkel said acute lymphocytic leukemia is the most frequent form of childhood cancer and 10 years ago was considered almost uniformly fatal.

Several childhood cancers "continue to be as fatal as ever," he said. These include disseminated neuroblastoma, affecting especially the adrenal gland, and malignant brain tumors.

State Legislature may end farm labor deadlock during busy week

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A possible end to the farm labor deadlock, a major hearing on medical malpractice and skirmishes in three major environmental battles await the California Legislature this week.

First on the calendar is today's hearing before the Assembly's energy committee on four bills which contain many of the same provisions as a June ballot initiative curbing nuclear power plants.

On Tuesday, the Assembly Ways and Means Committee votes on a $3.8-million appropriation for the state's farm labor board, while another committee considers grower-backed changes in the farm law.

Also Tuesday, the Senate's resources committee takes up a coastline protection measure and heads toward a possible vote on banning no-deposit bottles.

On Wednesday the Assembly's insurance committee will hear two rival malpractice bills.

The two houses' budget-writing subcommittees also have full schedules as they scrutinize each item of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s proposed 1976-77 budget.

Their major topics this week include judges' salaries, the farm labor and Air Resources boards, and Early Childhood Education.

This will be a week to test predictions by Brown and Democratic legislative leaders that a farm labor solution is near.

The board which has administered more than 400 secret-ballot elections has halted virtually all operations since an appropriation to keep it running through June was defeated in the state Senate.

The roadblock was thrown up by Republicans and rural Democrats, who demand changes including severe limits on union organizers' rights to enter growers' property.

The board's rule allowing organizers three hours a day of access to fields was upheld last week by the state Supreme Court in a ruling denounced by growers, who plan to appeal.

The day after Tuesday's Ways and Means vote, the board is expected to consider changes in its access rule — a development which could influence a possible Assembly floor vote on the appropriation Thursday.

Doctors' eyes, meanwhile, will be on the Assembly Finance, Insurance and Commerce Committee, which will hold its first hearing on a malpractice bill backed by the Brown administration and another supported by the California Medical Association.

Both bills would set up a voluntary insurance pool to lower doctors' initial premiums to $4,000, about a third of current Southern California rates. But they differ on future premiums.

The administration's measure, carried by Assemblyman Howard Berman, D-Beverly Hills, would escalate payments as much as 30 per cent a year to cover future deficits in the claims fund.

The CMA proposal, by Assemblyman Tom Bane, D-Van Nuys, could require taxpayers to pay deficits estimated by opponents at more than $2 billion in 10 years.

As an alternative, the CMA has proposed taxing health insurance policies or hospital beds to cover the deficits.

Patty Hearst trial

Fort's testimony continues

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A psychiatric expert who has disputed Patricia Hearst's claim that she helped rob a bank under fear of death was scheduled to return to the witness stand today.

Dr. Joel Fort's appearance Friday touched off some courtroom fireworks that left both U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. and defense counsel F. Lee Bailey tense with rage.

Bailey was particularly angered at one of Browning's questions, and U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J.

Carter postponed until today a ruling on whether Fort's answer will be allowed to stand.

The lawyers debated the question for more than 20 minutes before Carter said he would think about Bailey's argument over the weekend.

Bailey had snapped to his feet when Browning asked Fort if, in his professional opinion, the 22-year-old newspaper heiress "participated in the bank robbery because she was in fear of death or great bodily injury."

Fort, testifying for the government, replied, "No," as Bailey yelled his objection and furiously told the judge that only the jury had a right to answer that question.

The defense attorney argued that "the ultimate issue" in the trial was whether Miss Hearst voluntarily joined in the April 1974 bank robbery with the Symbionese Liberation Army "soldiers" who kidnaped her in February 1974.

Miss Hearst testified that she participated in the holdup to avoid being killed by the S.L.A.

Brown raps a three-day weekend

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's Admission Day holiday has been Sept. 9 for 125 years and that's the way it should stay, says Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Nor should there be another three-day weekend, which would increase highway traffic and gasoline consumption, he adds.

Brown announced his veto Sunday of a bill by Assemblyman Alfred Siegler, D-Vallejo, to switch the day to the second Monday in September, which would create a three-day weekend.

Admission Day is a state and public school holiday.

BLAZING SKY RIDER

This picture of Comet West was taken one morning last week by Jeff Schroeder of Pomona. The comet, visible to the naked eye an hour before dawn, is 75 million miles from Earth. It is swinging back into space after a rendezvous with the sun. Those who use binoculars will be able to trail the blazing space traveler for the rest of the month.

'New' skull raises doubts about Peking Man's age

WASHINGTON (AP) — A newly discovered skull of an early ancestor of man raises doubts about the dating of the famous Peking Man fossils, anthropologist Richard E. Leakey said today.

Another anthropologist, Donald C. Johanson, speaking of another development, constructed a composite hand from three-million-year-old bones of human-like creatures and said the construction might reveal how these primitive hands were used.

The scientists were to announce their findings today at a joint news conference sponsored by the National Geographic Society and the National Science Foundation.

Leakey said the complete skull he uncovered last year in northern Kenya is an estimated 1.5 million years old, yet is almost identical to fossils found near Peking dated at only a half-million years.

Fossils so alike should be from creatures that existed at about the same time, Leakey indicated. The African skull, accurately dated by radiation techniques, therefore raises questions about how old Peking Man really is, he said.

Fossils of Peking Man, considered by some the ancestor of the Mongoloid race, were first discovered in 1927. The best of the fossils disappeared in 1941, while being shipped from China for safekeeping during World War II, and have been the subject of a worldwide search.

Johanson detailed his discovery, announced last December, of 150 fossilized bones of two infants and three to five adult ancestors of man in the Afar Depression of Ethiopia.

The bones have been dated as being at least three million years old, he said, and probably are closer to 3.5 million years old. He said there were indications the group of creatures died together, possibly in a flash flood.

"If this is the case, the fossil people may have been living in a group," Johanson said. "This is evidence for the idea of cooperative behavior, which I feel formed the basis for early human survival."

Johanson, physical anthropology curator at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, said the composite hand he put together from 35 bones of adults and children is the most complete hand of such great age.

"Further study will reveal the capabilities of the hand for manipulation and perhaps tool making," he said.

Leakey, director of the National Museums of Kenya, also announced that he found a skull dated from 2.5 million to 3 million years old. He said this was of the same type and period of one he found in 1972 in the same region of Kenya, and named "skull 1470."

Discovered with the second skull was a hip bone of the same age, he added.

"Skull 1470" was controversial because it indicated that man's direct ancestors existed more than a million years earlier than previously thought.

Leakey said the new discoveries confirmed that the original skull was "not a unique freak," as some critics suggested, but part of a line of human-like creatures coming down to present man.

Leakey and Johanson said their discoveries tied in with those of Leakey's mother, Mary Leakey, who announced last October the discovery of the oldest reliably dated remains of early man ever found.

In Laetoli in Tanzania, she found fossil jaws and teeth of eight adults and three children dated between 3.35 million and 3.75 million years old.

Mrs. Leakey's find was near the site where she and her late husband, Louis, made earlier discoveries that made them famous as leaders in the search for man's origins.

Until recently, many anthropologists believed man descended from an ape-like primate of relatively recent date called Australopithecus.

Leakey said his discoveries, and those of his mother and Johanson, suggest that man's direct ancestor was another line of creatures called Homo, which developed side by side with Australopithecus from a common ancestor much farther back in time.

Many experts now believe Australopithecus died off for some unknown reason, perhaps one million years ago, after coexisting with Homo for two million years.

The theory of parallel development helps explain why anthropologists cannot connect all existing fossils of human-like creatures into one line of succession leading down to modern man.

Wright Patman, dean of House, bank foe, dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wright Patman, dean of the House of Representatives who spent much of his 48 years in the chamber battling big banks and corporations, is dead after being stricken with the flu.

Patman, 82, had been admitted to Bethesda Naval Medical Center on Feb. 26 for treatment of influenza and two days later was placed in intensive care after developing pneumonia. He died there Sunday morning.

The Texas Democrat was serving in his 24th term in the House. He had announced Jan. 14 that he would step down at the end of the 94th Congress next January.

The White House released a statement expressing President Ford's "deep regret and sadness upon learning of the death of his friend of many years standing."

Patman's "decades of outstanding service to the House of Representatives and to our nation has served as an inspiration to all who knew and worked with him. His dedication to principle and his tireless efforts on behalf of all our citizens will long be remembered," Ford said.

House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., said, "No member who has served in the House during this century will make a more enduring impact on the House of Representatives and the nation than Wright Patman."

"He is probably unmatched in his devotion to the problems of human beings. Wright Patman was a hard fighter who, through a life dedicated to public service, gave his best efforts to save his day and generation," Albert added.

Using his chairmanship of the House Banking and Currency Committee, Patman launched numerous attacks on the Federal Reserve System, its tight money policies and banks which he felt had grown too large and powerful.

He chaired the committee from 1963 until January 1975, when an influx of post-Watergate freshmen representatives bent on changing Congress ousted him.

His populist philosophy sprang from early economic lessons learned as he grew up in the East Texas cotton-farming country. The son of a tenant farmer who was forced to pay as high as 50 per cent interest on crop loans, John William Wright Patman was born Aug. 6, 1893, in a log cabin in Patman's Switch, a settlement named for his forebearers.

Young Patman rode six miles to school every day on a mule. He raised cotton to work his way through college and to get a law degree at Cumberland University.

Patman's congressional district changed over the years — cotton was overtaken as the chief product by cattle and timber, and the settlement of Patman's Switch disappeared. Texarkana, the biggest city in the district, became Patman's hometown.

Elected to the House in 1928, Patman set his sights on the Banking Committee. More times than anyone knows during his years in Congress, Patman sounded off in his deceptively soft voice against monopoly and mergers, especially of banks.

Patman thought banks should stay tied closely to the communities in which they operated and not be allowed to grow out of bounds. He felt interest should be low because high rates fed inflation.

"Bankers are the only people who can manufacture money without going to the penitentiary," he once said. "They are supposed to use this money to take care of the credit needs of their communities — make loans to businessmen, farmers, individuals on fair terms — not invest it in taxfree municipal bonds."

In 1932, as a second-term member, Patman charged that Treasury Secretary Andrew Mellon's wealth constituted a conflict of interest and offered an impeachment resolution. Mellon resigned during hearings on the matter and was appointed ambassador to Great Britain by President Herbert Hoover. "A pardon midway during a trial," Patman called it.

Patman was one of seven members of the House to vote for impeachment of Hoover for mishandling the Depression.

He also attempted to launch the first congressional investigation of the Watergate affair in October 1972, when he announced a banking committee probe. But he had not notified the panel's members before making public his intentions and they voted against the probe.

During the Depression, Patman triumphed with enactment of the Robinson-Patman Act, which was called everything from the "Anti-Chain Store Act" to the "Golden Rule of American Business." The act banned buyers and sellers from granting or getting discriminatory prices.

Patman considered his finest achievement the 1936 passage of a bill to pay $3.5 billion to World War I veterans. "My enemies called it a bonus bill ... that it was a free gift or something," he said later. "But we were only paying veterans for what they had done..."

As banking chairman, he fought an endless battle with the chairmen of the Federal Reserve Board, particularly the current chairman, Arthur Burns, and one of his predecessors, William McChesney Martin Jr. He fought for tighter administration control and congressional scrutiny.

The fight brought him in recent years admiration from a diverse group of followers, including New Left students and consumer groups.

Following Patman's death, consumer advocate Ralph Nader called him "a great public educator on the power of big money and banking."

Before he was elected to the House, Patman served two terms in the Texas House of Representatives and five years as a district attorney. Faced with stiff challenges from time to time, he was never defeated or forced into a run-off in 28 consecutive elections.

He was married in 1919 to Merle Connor, who died in 1967, and in 1968 he married Mrs. Pauline Tucker, who survives. He and his first wife had three sons who also survive, William of Ganado, Tex., a state senator; Harold, a geologist in Austin, Tex., and Connor, a Texarkana attorney.

Funeral services will be held in Texarkana Wednesday morning at the First Baptist Church followed by burial in Hillcrest Cemetery.

Gold panning record

ROSAMOND (AP)—For 12 years, either too much sand or too little gold kept Larry Bertles from finding his mother lode: a victory in what is billed as the gold panning championship of the world.

On Sunday, the Fallon, Nev. man's efforts turned up eight gold nuggets and a world's record in the 16th annual competition here.

"Well, I feel I had it coming after 12 years," Bertles said after the contest. "I felt I could have done it in those other times. This year everything came out right."

Bertles panned faster and more accurately than 40 other contestants in this Southern California town about 11 miles northwest of Lancaster.

The contest doesn't require the winner to find his own gold. Eight nuggets are placed in the contestant's pan with equal amounts of sand and water. The object is to swish out all the sand without losing any of the nuggets.

Bertles, a 60-year-old retired Lockheed Corp. supervisor, swirled his way to a record mark of 15.4 seconds. The old mark was 16.5 seconds set last year by Don Roberts, 20, of Hacienda Heights, Calif.

"I've been in this contest 12 years and I'd probably panned 10 or 12 years before that as a hobby," said Bertles.

Store's burglary loss set at $4,146

The value of loot taken during last weekend's burglary of Wright Bros. & Rice furniture store at 252 S. Main St. in Pomona has been placed at $4,146, police said today. The loot consisted mostly of color television sets, and stereo components.

The burglars broke into the store through the front door and took the items from a display area on the first floor and from the basement. They passed over several black and white sets, police said. The value of the loss was revealed after an inventory.

A burglar broke into the Raku Gallery at 224 Yale Ave. in CLAREMONT sometime Saturday night or early Sunday and stole cash and an undetermined amount of jewelry, police reported.

The breakin was discovered at noon Sunday when an employee, Maureen A. Winn, 19 arrived to open.

Police said the intruder climbed to the roof of the building, removed a pane of glass from a skylight and used a 20-foot rope to lower himself inside the one-story store.

Sam Galbraith, 1785 W. Arrow Highway near Upland reported to West End sheriff's deputies that burglars broke into his garage Sunday and made off with nearly $2,000 in tools.

VFW to fight 'dismantling' of benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars told Congress today the organization will fight efforts by "antiveterans forces and social welfare planners within and without the government" to dismantle federal benefits for veterans.

Thomas C. Walker, commander-in-chief of the 1.8-million-member organization, also expressed concern — in testimony prepared for the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee — about what he called "the shocking cuts" in the proposed Veterans Administration budget.

As the American Legion did last week, the VFW told the committee the budget cutbacks will endanger quality health care for the veterans by reducing outpatient care and providing no new hospital construction.

But Walker centered his attack on what he called efforts to dismantle the VA, especially its hospital system.

Former mental patient kills 3 others, himself

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A former mental patient shot and killed his estranged wife, the couple's teen-aged daughter and another man before taking his own life on Sunday, the Ada County Sheriff's Office said.

Sheriff E.C. Palmer said the man, identified as David Salkfield, 35, had made several death threats against his wife since being released from a mental health facility a week ago.

"When they make death threats, there is nothing we can do until they commit an overt act," Palmer said at a news conference Sunday.

He said Salkfield went to the home of his wife, Donna, about 1:30 p.m. Sunday and shot William Stimpson, about 50, on the front lawn. He said Mrs. Salkfield was shot at the entryway of the home and 16-year-old Cherie Salkfield was shot in the kitchen.

Salkfield then killed himself, the sheriff said.

He said two other teen-aged Salkfield children and three teen-aged neighbors were in the house at the time of the shootings.

Mexico's jetset discovers an island paradise

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Tex. (AP) — The man's fleshy chest sloped into a midsection paunch, giving him the appearance of a bronzed pear.

He was too young for a paunch—35, maybe 40 years old—but such things can come with the good life.

And the good life on this island retreat is part of Mexico's nuevo oro—new gold.

He jogged through the surf, flinging beads of salt water from his ebony hair, toward a circle of children and adults shuffling impatiently around a barbecue grill.

"Hey, Rogelio! Como esta?" an older man in the group hailed. They were silhouetted against a row of condominiums sprouting from lush beachside lawns.

This is where many of Mexico's jetsetters—hombres de dinero—are spending millions of pesos.

"They're business people and they like to get away from the business world. Life is too fast," said Gus Zavaletta, owner of the Aquarius condominium complex. "They do know how to party. Many of them are millionaires but they really let their hair down here."

Big cars and bikinis—with the right women to fill them—are part and parcel of the scene.

There are about 1,000 swank condominium apartments on South Padre Island—some costing as much as $100,000. About one-third are owned by residents of Monterrey, Mexico. Of the 67 apartments in the Aquarius complex, Zavaletta estimated 70 per cent are owned by Monterrey citizens.

"This is their second home and they treat it that way," he said. "It's really been good for our economy. The people are spending millions of pesos here."

No argument from Art Page, manager of a nearby liquor store.

"They're great spenders. I wish we had a lot more of them."

One developer said condominium owners in his complex include owners of a Mexican paper mill, a steel mill and a brewery.

Much of the attraction of South Padre Island apparently lies in its closeness to Monterrey, 250 miles away. This area is easily accessible from the Mexican city for holidays, weekends and lazy summer vacations.

"They are family oriented. We sell to someone and then their brother or some other member of the family buys one nearby," a spokesman for Bahia Mar Realty said.

Condominiums at The Breakers run from $80,000 to $100,000 each.

"They're delightful people to deal with and they are very appreciative of anything we can do for them," said one realtor.

Such open arms, however, are not so open to Americans living in Mexico.

Doctors Prove You Can Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieve Pain And Itch Too.

Gives prompt temporary relief from hemorrhoidal pain and itch in many cases.

When inflammation, infection and swelling exist in hemorrhoidal tissues—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But there's an exclusive formulation which in many cases gives hours of relief from the burning itch and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also helps shrink the swelling of such tissues. Sufferers are delighted at the way it acts so gently and is so soothing to sensitive tissues.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients reported similar successful results in many cases. And it was all done without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or stinging, smarting astringents of any kind.

You can obtain this same medication used in these tests at any drug counter. Its name is Preparation H®. Preparation H also lubricates to protect the inflamed, irritated surface area to help make bowel movements more comfortable. Be sure and try Preparation H in ointment or suppository form.

What's going on around here

BANK VICE PRESIDENT — John H. Herring, a Pomona College graduate, has been promoted to vice president of the Bank of California's San Francisco main office operations administration division.
A former Pomona resident, he joined the bank's data processing department in October 1970 and was appointed assistant vice president the following May.
Herring serves as vice president, board member and treasurer of the California Automated Clearing House Association and has been a frequent speaker for American Management Association seminars.
He and his wife, Marjorie, reside in Walnut Creek. He is the son of Jean Herring of La Verne.

SANTA FE CLOSING — The California Public Utilities Commission has granted Santa Fe Railroad the authority to close its Pomona agency.
Following a public hearing last November, the commission reported that during the past few years the personnel and duties of the Pomona agency have dwindled to where its responsibilities and duties can be performed by one person working one hour a day.
Service for the Pomona area will be available from either Upland or Azusa. The commission directed Santa Fe to operate a telephone answering device at Azusa when the agency is not attended.

GLASS OFFICERS ELECTED — Lillian Dick has been elected president of the Montclair Depression Glass Club.
Other officers are Robert Morris, vice president; Martha Vogt, treasurer; Patricia Corrado, recording secretary; and Deborah Gott, historian.
The new president appointed these chairmen: publicity, Ellen Werden; plaza show, Robert Corrado and James Eberhardt; welcoming, Paul and Mar. Carlson; sunshine, Jeanne Hoehn; refreshment, Myrtle Johnstone; gift, Deborah Gott; and membership, Virginia Wagner.
The club will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Imperial Savings and Loan Association building, 400 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont.

TOASTMASTERS TOASTED — Shaef Gilliland of Ontario won the best speaker award at a recent Ontario-Upland Toastmaster meeting.
Ken Duford of Upland was named best evaluator and Brady Muehlen of Ontario was given the best table topics award.

OSTOMY FAIR — The second annual ostomy products fair will be held at the Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina March 23 at 7:30 p.m.
Representatives of national ostomy manufacturers and local pharmacies will demonstrate new ostomy appliances and supplies.

Southern lawyers claim death penalty ban hiking homicides

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The lawyers for five Southern states say the 1972 decision by the U.S. Supreme Court outlawing the death penalty has resulted in an increase in homicides.

Representatives of Texas, Georgia, North Carolina, Florida and Louisiana met in a private session recently to coordinate legal strategy for their challenge to the high court's decision against capital punishment.

"There has been a tremendous escalation of homicides in our state since the last execution in Florida, in 1964," the state's attorney general, Robert L. Shevin, told reporters afterward.

"There's been a tremendous upswing in murder during robberies," added Texas Atty. Gen. John L. Hill. "There's nothing to deter them from taking lives."

"If you want to talk about villains, talk about the Supreme Court," said Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten in reporting that serious crime in North Carolina was up 31 per cent last year.

In 1972, the court said the system of capital punishment discriminated against the poor and blacks because judges and juries had too much discretion in deciding whether a convicted defendant should be executed or go to prison.

More than 460 persons have been condemned under new death penalty laws passed by 35 states since the 1972 Supreme Court decision. But because of the uncertain status of death penalty laws passed since 1972, no one has been executed. They remain on prison "death rows" pending resolution of the legal questions.

The court is scheduled to hear arguments on appeals from murder convictions in the five Southern states, and California has said it plans to file a "friend of the court" brief on behalf of the five states.

Each case involves a new state law reimposing the death penalty for specific crimes, with judicial procedures changed in an effort to avoid conflict with the court's 1972 ruling.

Since a variety of state laws and homicides are involved, precedent set by the Supreme Court rulings in the five cases is also likely to apply to new death penalty laws adopted by other states.

"We think this round may decide the question of capital punishment once and for all," said Shevin.

The challenge again before the high court contends that the death penalty is cruel, inhuman, impossible to impose with impartial justice and thus unconstitutional.

National's No Frills Fare.™

The lowest one way nonstop fare to Houston.

When you fly National's No Frills Fare, you save a big 35%. Right through the winter. And you can't beat that.

Here's how National's No Frills works. You must purchase your tickets and make reservations at the same time, no later than 7 days in advance. You can fly Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. You get no meals, but you save 35% on your fare. Children 2-11 with an adult fly for about 1/3 off the No Frills Fare. And you can stay as long as you like. These fares are good through June 17, 1976. Should you have to cancel your flight, 10% of the fare or $10 (whichever is higher) is non-refundable. Since the number of No Frills seats is limited, act fast. It's first come, first serve.

At National, we do everything we can to give you terrific service and low fares. Not because we have to, but because we want to. This is what flying's all about. For reservations, call your travel agent or National Airlines at 800-252-0086 (toll free).

Here are other No Frills Fares:
New Orleans	$ 87

Fares are one way and include tax. A removal security charge is extra.

Install R-19 ceiling insulation now. Cut back on the gas you use for heating forever.

Do it yourself — it only takes a day.

Do-it-yourself ceiling insulation gives you double savings. You save on the cost of installation, you save on the amount of gas you use for heating.

Check your attic or crawl space. Even if there's some insulation there, you probably need more to meet current FHA R-19 standards for energy conservation. (R-19 is simply a measure of the insulation material's ability to prevent winter heat loss and summer heat gain. All manufacturers label their insulation materials with R-values.)

You'll find installing R-19 ceiling insulation is surprisingly easy — our free booklet tells you exactly how. It only takes a few hours to complete the job, but your savings go on forever.

AVAILABLE IN ROLLS, BATTS

DON'T WAIT — INSULATE

Install whole-house R-19 ceiling insulation... get this energy-saving HOT WATER SAVER KIT FREE

With proof of insulation purchase and installation, The Gas Company will give you this $10.40 Bubble Stream® showerhead, kitchen and bathroom sink aerators. Cuts back the water you waste, helps you save even more on gas consumption. Offer good for limited time only. Pick up special ordering envelope in our store.

Broncos win playoff berth

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Cal Poly's basketball season isn't over yet.

The Broncos were named to the 32-team NCAA Division II basketball tournament Sunday to complete the field for the national playoffs.

Poly will play in the West

CCAA

Conference	Overall	W	L	Pct.	W	L
Cal St. Bakersfield	8	2	800	22	4
Cal Poly Pomona	7	3	700	15	12
Cal St. Los Angeles	6	4	600	13	14
UC Riverside	4	6	400	9	17
Cal St. Northridge	3	7	300	13	13
Cal Poly SLO	2	8	200	13	13

Friday's results

Cal Poly Pomona 92, Cal St. Northridge 74
Cal St. Bakersfield 81, Cal Poly SLO 63
UC Santa Barbara 100, Cal St. Los Angeles 89 (non-league)

Saturday's result

UC Riverside 78, Cal St. Los Angeles 76
Wednesday's games
NCAA Division II
Western Regionals
at Tacoma, Wash.
Cal St. Bakersfield vs. UC Davis, 7 p.m.
Cal Poly Pomona vs. Puget Sound, 9 p.m.

Regionals at Tacoma, Wash. Wednesday and Thursday nights. The winner at Tacoma will host a quarter-final game next Monday with that winner going to the national finals at Evansville, Ind. on March 18-19.

The next game for the Broncos will be at 9 p.m. Wednesday against host Puget Sound in Tacoma. In the 7 p.m. opener, Cal State Bakersfield will play UC Davis.

Poly's selection is somewhat of a surprise considering the 15-12 overall record but the Broncos' tough non-league schedule plus the competitiveness of the California Collegiate Athletic Association played big parts in the choice.

Bakersfield (22-4) earned an automatic berth by winning the CCAA title outright while Puget Sound (22-7) enjoyed the best record of any West Coast independent.

UC Davis (18-8) beat Chico State, 72-70, Friday night to win a co-championship with Chico in the Far Western Conference.

Poly got a big break when UC Riverside upset Cal State Los Angeles, 78-76, Saturday night to knock the Diablos out of a possible second place tie with the Broncos in the final CCAA standings.

CSLA ended the season with a 13-14 overall record and 6-4 in CCAA play, one game behind Poly's 7-3 conference mark.

The Broncos were also fortunate because none of the other independents — U. San Diego, UC Irvine, Chapman or Seattle Pacific — were able to compile impressive records this season.

"It's like sneaking in the back door but we'll take it," Poly Coach Don Hogan said after hearing of the selection after returning home from church Sunday. "Now we have to take advantage of the opportunity."

Hogan was busy the rest of Sunday trying to contact his players to get them together for practice today.

His team scattered to their homes after Friday's impressive 92-74 victory over Cal State Northridge.

"We get another crack at this madness," Hogan said. "I feel this selection is a positive thing for us and is another indication that our program is on the upswing. This is Poly's best team in a decade."

Even though the goal of a CCAA championship didn't come true, Hogan guided the Broncos to 15 wins, the most by a Poly team since 1967. The 7-3 record is also the best for the school since joining the conference in 1968.

Hogan was pleased after the Northridge win.

"This is the way we played earlier in the year," he said. "I think we found the winning combination again. The team was very poised."

The extension of the season will help guard Joe Sills extend his career scoring record. He scored 33 against Northridge to raise his career mark to 1,049 to surpass Paul Scranton's record of 1,040 which had been in the books since 1966.

However, Sills may only have the record for a year. Junior forward Jack Gamulin scored his season high of 30 Friday to raise his season total to 479.

This will be Poly's third trip to the NCAA playoffs.

Coach Bob Stull's Broncos earned berths in 1962 and 1964. The 1962 team beat Fresno State in the first round but lost to Sacramento State in the Regional finals.

In 1964, Poly won the West by beating Nevada Reno and Fresno State but the Broncos were defeated by eventual national champion Evansville, 95-73, at the national quarter-finals.

Chicago Bulls' star Jerry Sloan was the Evansville star that year.

PHOTO FINISH

Royal Glint (inside) and Ancient Title race to the wire for a photo finish won by Royal Glint in Sunday's $255,900 Santa Anita Handicap.

Lightening Mandate (right center) finished third. The winner won $155,900, with jockey Jorge Tejeira in the saddle.

Shoe still needs two wins

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Bill Shoemaker needs just two more victories to reach the 7,000 plateau in his record riding career, and he should do it this week.

He had a chance Sunday, but managed only one winner and his mount in the $255,900 Santa Anita Handicap, Dulcia, finished only 10th in a field of 15 as the Eastern invader Royal Glint nosed out Ancient Title for the victory.

The 44-year-old Shoemaker reached 6,998 in the second Santa Anita race aboard Medical Man, the winner when Sawtooth, who beat him by a head, was disqualified. Shoe had moved to within three victories of the plateau Saturday with a single triumph aboard Powerful Lady in the seventh race.

With no Santa Anita racing today or Tuesday, the Shoe gets his next record chance Wednesday.

Royal Glint arrived just last Thursday from Philadelphia, and jockey Jorge Tejeira also flew West for the bid at the $155,900 winner's purse, of which the rider gets 10 per cent.

That meant $15,590 for two minutes' work, the final time for the 1 1/4-mile race being 2:00 2/5. That was below the handicap record of 1:59 and 3/5.

Ancient Title, loser by just the nose, collected $40,000 with $30,000 to the favored Lightning Mandate, who was 1 1/4 lengths further back, and $20,000 to Ensign Ruken, a field horse who wound up fourth.

The crowd of 68,474 broke California betting records on the nine-race program. There was $6,720,044 wagered during the day, the daily double pool totaled $476,035, and the exacta on the fifth race was $642,630. Previous marks were $5,667,309, $448,962, and $516,630, all set at Santa Anita.

Trainer Gordon Potter revealed that Royal Glint nearly missed the race for which he had been flown West.

"He almost choked on a cribbing strap Sunday morning," Potter said.

The trainer's son, Derrick, noted the problem and grabbed away the strap which was around the 6-year-old's neck to keep from him gulping air, but which nearly choked him while he was eating hay.

The big purse boosted Royal Glint's career earnings to $817,808. He was purchased as an unraced 2-year-old for $87,000, and is now owned by Dan Lasater of Dayton, Ohio. In his last previous Santa Anita outing last fall, Royal Glint finished second to Dulcia in the $350,000 American Thoroughbred Championship.

Before coming West, he had won the Grey Lag Handicap at Aqueduct in New York earlier this year.

Tejeira, who rode the horse last year, commented, "I thought they might have caught me right at the wire," referring to Ancient Title and rider Sandy Hawley.

"Royal Glint is a real nice horse, but you have to let him run his own race or he just won't put out."

Tejeira revealed he was whipping his mount in the race to the wire, "because I could hear those horses

Messersmith decision due

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A decision is expected this week from the federal appeals court here on the free agent status of baseball pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally.

At issue is a judgement by U.S. District Judge John W. Oliver upholding arbitrator Peter Seitz' decision to allow the two major league pitchers to become free agents.

A three judge panel of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals heard oral arguments Feb. 20.

Seitz found that Messersmith was no longer under contract to the Los Angeles Dodgers and that McNally was not under contract to the Montreal Expos, because they went through the 1975 baseball season without signing contracts.

The owners contended that the arbitration machinery was never intended to deal with the reserve system. Free agent status makes the players eligible to negotiate with other clubs.

The clubs contend that automatic contract renewal is perpetual and they own the services of a player until they sell, trade or release him.

Irwin wins in sudden death

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Hale Irwin scored a routine par on the fourth extra hole Monday—the sixth hole of the delayed, controversial, two-day sudden death playoff—and defeated bitterly-disappointed Kermit Zarley for the title and the $40,000 first prize in the Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

A groan of dismay went up from the small gallery that had gathered under threatening skies and Zarley's shoulders slumped when his two-foot, parsaving putt missed the cup on the par three 16th hole at the Rio Pinar Country Club course.

Irwin, rapidly moving up in the ranks of the game's great players, and Zarley had finished the regulation 72 holes tied for the top at 270—18 under par—and matched pars on two playoff holes before darkness halted the proceedings Sunday.

"We should have finished," the irate Irwin said at the time. "We should make decisions out here on the tour, not in a network office in New York."

They returned this morning and matched strokes over three more playoff holes before Zarley's bogey on the fourth playoff hole of the day and the sixth of the tournament.

behind us."

Royal Glint paid $14, $6.40 and $4.20. Ancient Title returned $9.80, and $7, with each carrying high weight of 124 pounds. Lightning Mandate, 120, with Angel Cordero Jr. — who also flew in from the East — paid $4.40.

In the weekend's other featured race at Santa Anita, Gai Hai scored a $30.80 upset in the $56,550 Arcadia Handicap Saturday

UCLA to face San Diego St.

By The Associated Press

There was both good and bad news for the San Diego State Aztecs basketball team.

The good news rested in the Aztecs' 76-64 victory Sunday over the University of Pacific at the Pacific Coast Athletic Association tournament in Stockton. The triumph gave San Diego the final berth in the NCAA western regional playoffs.

Now for the bad news — the Aztecs, who are 16-12 this year, face seventh-ranked UCLA in the first round of the NCAA tournament, and the Bruins beat San Diego 101-86 in an earlier game this season.

UCLA ended regular season play Saturday night with an 87-73 victory over crosstown rival Southern California. The Bruins begin defense of their NCAA crown in Eugene, Ore. Saturday against San Diego State.

Nevada-Las Vegas will meet Boise St. in the other West Regional contest in Eugene.

Pepperdine also claimed a shot at the NCAA tournament Saturday night when junior center Marcos Leite poured in 28 points and picked off 15 rebounds to lead the Waves to an 85-84 overtime victory against the University of San Francisco.

Pepperdine, the West Coast Athletic Conference champions, will meet Memphis State Saturday in Tempe, Ariz. The other regional contest there will match Arizona against Georgetown.

UOP fought its way into the PCAA finals by upsetting Fullerton State 72-64 Saturday night. The Aztecs, who finished third in regular PCAA play with a 5-5 record, squeaked by San Jose State 67-64. The Aztecs' Will Connelly scored a game-high 23 points to help beat Pacific on Sunday.

Scribes pick Dantley

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Adrian Dantley, Notre Dame's three-year standout, and Scott May and Kent Benson of top-ranked Indiana head the 10-man All-American basketball team announced Sunday by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

Dantley was named player of the year on the USBWA club. The 6-foot-5 junior is one of four underclassmen on the allstar team. May is 6-7 senior, and Benson a 6-11 junior.

Joining them on the USBWA team are Richard Washington, 6-11 junior, UCLA; John Lucas, 6-4 senior, Maryland; Bernard King, 6-8 sophomore, Tennessee; Earl Tatum, 6-3 senior, Marquette; Willie Smith, 6-2 senior, Missouri; Phil Sellers, 6-4 senior, Rutgers, and Mitch Kupchak, 6-9 senior, North Carolina.

It was the second victory in three weeks for Irwin, and the sixth of his career. The $40,000 check pushed his earnings for the year to $113,612 and made him the first man on the tour to go beyond $100,000 this season. Zarley collected $22,800 for second and now has $23,682 for the season.

NBC-TV taped today's play for viewing later in the afternoon.

Cazzie Russell is bitter

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

INGLEWOOD — The Lakers are staggering toward the NBA Playoffs. However it's a tossup as to whether or not they'll make it.

Following Sunday night's 91-88 loss to the Chicago Bulls, coach Bill Sharman was reluctant to comment on what it might take to insure a Laker playoff berth.

Cazzie Russell tried but couldn't hide his bitterness about the way he figured in the game's outcome. It appears that the Laker forward and his coach are on a collision course.

"Gee, I don't know," said Sharman when asked about the playoffs. "It's hard to say. With four teams fighting to get in, any one could hit a hot streak. I was hoping this would be our streak."

Sharman's team had won three straight and seven of 11 going into Sunday night's contest. Friday they had played superbly and beaten defending league champion Golden State.

Chicago, on the other hand, had lost six straight. The Bulls were, and still are, in possession of the worst record (18-44) going in of any of the 18 NBA teams.

In losing, the Lakers blew a golden opportunity to pick up ground on the other three stragglers in the Pacific Division. Third-place Seattle had already lost when the Lakers' game began.

Now Sharman must take his club on the road for games against New York (Tuesday) and Boston (Wednesday). Both will be televised (KTLA, channel 5, 6 p.m.).

There are 18 games remaining, nine at home and nine on the road.

But only five are with the other three straggling division teams, three of them on the road.

They meet the Sonics and Phoenix home-and-home and have one game at Portland. There is also a home-and-home duo with defending champion Golden State.

"This loss was really a shame," sighed Sharman shaking his head. "It sort of wipes out our great win Friday night."

The Lakers led 26-18 after the first quarter, 43-39 at the half and 67-66 after three quarters. They were ahead by four, 87-83, with 2:15 left in the game.

But the Bulls outscored them, 8-1, at the end of the game. The only Laker point inf that last 2:15 was Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's free throw. Jabbar made one of two to cap a horrible team effort at the charity line (only six of 13).

Meanwhile the Bulls scored on Jack Marin's 20 foot jumper (85-87), Bob Wilson's pair of free throws (87-88), Bob Love's two free throws (89-88) and Leon Benbow's charity tosses (91-88).

There were 10 seconds remaining at that time and the Lakers took a time out to set up a play. Russell was inserted in the lineup and took the shot, a 15-17 footer, and missed.

"We expected them to go to Kareem or (Gail) Goodrich," said Bulls' coach Dick Motta. "We didn't notice that Cazzie was in the game until play began."

Russell was both disappointed and disgusted.

"I was surprised when he (Sharman) called me," Russell said. "I hadn't played in the second half. I was cold. I'm not making excuses because I was wide open and I'll make that shot nine out of 10 times."

"The other night," Russell continued, "I was lucky. I came in and hit four or five. But you've got to keep your competitive edge by playing."

"He (Sharman) can play anybody he thinks is best. But if you're going to use a guy, you get him ready. If not. Tell him. This could mean the playoffs. I'm sorry I had to miss when everybody was out there working so hard."

NIT gets Kentucky, Louisville

Louisville, Kentucky and Providence are all former NIT champions. The Cardinals, who won in 1956, will be making their 11th appearance in this event. Kentucky, making its first appearance here since 1950, has played in six NITs and won in 1946.

The SEC race will be decided Monday night when Alabama faces Vanderbilt in the season finale. The Crimson Tide must beat the Commodores for the championship, otherwise a coin flip will decide North Carolina's eventual opponent.

the Western Athletic Conference crown; Missouri won the Big Eight with a 95-60 rout of Colorado; Texas Tech defeated Texas A&M 74-72 in the Southwest Conference finals; Hofstra won the East Coast Conference title with a 79-72 whipping of Temple; Wichita State took the Missouri Valley crown by beating Drake 75-69 while Southern Illinois was los-ed the New England Regionals with an 87-73 upset of Providence; Georgetown beat George Washington 68-63 for the Southern title and Rutgers whipped St. John's 70-67 to win the Metro Division championship. Rutgers and St. John's both were assured of NCAA playoff berths before the contest while the others had to win their way into the NCAAs.

The loss to Rutgers gave St. John's the tough assignment of facing top-ranked Indiana in the Midwest at South Bend. Rutgers pulled an easier draw, facing Ivy League champion Princeton at Providence R.I. UCLA, the defending national champion, will face the PCAA winner in the West Regionals at Wally Walker scored 21 points for Virginia, giving him 73 for the three ACC tournament games, and Billy Langloh hit five crucial free throws in the last 34 seconds as the Cavaliers beat North Carolina.

Health programs for elderly begin

The Pomona Health Center will soon implement regular health programs for senior citizens in San Dimas as part of the Los Angeles County Health Department services.

Beginning Tuesday, a "Getting To Know You" program for the San Dimas elderly will be conducted by Sarah Cook, public health nurse on the Pomona staff. This weekly program will be held each Tuesday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center, 210 W. Bonita Ave.

Mrs. Cook will provide health counseling on a one-to-one basis and in small groups, present health information and be available to listen and discuss health crises for the elderly.

On March 23, the Pomona Health Center will present a free blood pressure clinic during the regular Senior Citizens Club meeting at the San Dimas Community Building. All persons 55 and older are urged to attend the clinic which will also present information on the relationship between high blood pressure and heart attacks, strokes, congestive heart failure, blindness, kidney failure and rapid aging.

Depending upon the success of this first clinic, additional clinics will be established on a quarterly or six-month basis by the Health Department. Information on nutrition also will be part of the clinic.

'High Rollers' trip scheduled

Pomona residents will have an opportunity to attend the NBC "High Rollers" television game show March 18 on a trip organized by the Pomona school district.

The first 150 to sign up will attend, according to Harold Carroll, director of the Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) pilot project, who is coordinating the event.

Buses will leave the Education Center at 2:15 p.m. and return at 8 p.m., Carroll said. Those who attend should be at the Education Center parking lot at 800 S. Garey Ave. at 2 p.m.

Those 12 or older who wish to attend may register with Brenda Winston, pilot project secretary, at 623-5251, Ext. 465.

Door company changes building

Strait Door and Plywood Corp. has moved into a 75,000-square-foot manufacturing building at 13951 Monte Vista Ave., Chino.

The firm is phasing out its smaller facilities in El Monte, and concentrating production at the Chino facility, said Charles E. Strait, executive vice president and general manager.

The company manufactures slab doors for the building trades, with a line of both solid and hollow core construction, Strait explained. "We also provide fire doors for commercial or industrial uses, one rated at 20 minutes and a fire door with a one-hour rating."

Illegal Mexican aliens arrested

Claremont police arrested 16 illegal Mexican aliens early this morning after stopping a truck containing them shortly after 6 o'clock at Base Line Road and Indian Hill Boulevard.

The El Roble Swimming Pool sign will be reviewed by the commission, which last June 25, 1975, disapproved the existing pool sign for future use and recommended that the city submit a new sign prior to the opening of the pool for the summer season.

The city Parks and Recreation Department has requested a four by six-foot free-standing sign mounted two feet above the ground immediately north of the walkway leading to the swimming pool.

Claremont commission to study kiln yard

The Claremont Architectural Commission will visit McConnell Center Wednesday afternoon on a field trip before it considers a request for a metal structure to enclose a kiln yard on the west side of the center Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Pitzer College President Robert Atwell has reported that the metal building would be permanent.

In other matters the commission will review the remodeling of a building at 131 Yale Ave.

Six valley accidents injure 10 over weekend

An Ontario man was reported in critical condition today with injuries sustained when his pickup truck hit a stalled truck and a car on the Pomona Freeway near Dudley Avenue, Diamond Bar, Saturday.

In all, 10 persons were injured in six accidents over the weekend. Others were in Pomona, Upland, Montclair and Ontario.

Tiznado Bonaficio, 41, of 503 S. Lemon St., Ontario, was injured in the Pomona Freeway Accident.

Highway patrol officers said Bonaficio ran into the rear of a disabled truck registered to Natalie Harper of Salinas, then crashed into a car driven by Stephen A. Hornath, 18, of Whittier.

Bonaficio was reported in critical condition this morning at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Hornath was treated there and released.

A Pomona man was arrested after a traffic collision Saturday night in which two persons were injured.

The collision was at Towne and Grand avenues, Pomona, shortly before 9 o'clock. Police said one driver, Robert James Mitzler, 23, failed to stop at a stop sign before his car collided with a car driven by Edward B. Porter, 31, Pomona.

Neither driver was hurt but two passengers in Porter's car were hurt. Most seriously injured was Elene Porter, 39, who was reported in fair condition today in Pomona Valley Community Hospital's intensive care unit. She had a broken right arm and multiple injuries to her right side. The other victim, 17-year-old April Porter, was released after treatment of a cut forehead.

Police reported that they arrested Metzler on suspicion of felony drunk driving after the accident.

An 80-year-old Alhambra woman was injured in Upland Sunday morning when a car she was riding in crashed into the side of another vehicle on Euclid Avenue near D Street.

Mrs. Beatrice Norton, a passenger in a car driven by Beatrice Charlene Bryan, 56, also of Alhambra, was listed in good condition this morning at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland with multiple injuries suffered in the accident.

Police said the Alhambra woman's car, northbound on Euclid Avenue, sideswiped a carry-all truck pulling out from the curb. The car after impact, went out of control, struck a curb and crashed over the median strip onto D Street.

The driver of the carry-all, Ernest Carl Snyder, 53, of 1773 Albright St., Upland, was not injured.

Three persons were injured Saturday night when a car struck another that was being pushed along Monte Vista Avenue south of Mission Boulevard, Montclair area.

The highway patrol said Kevin Thompson, 16, of 1117 Carmanata St., Pomona, and Willie R. Dickson, 16, of 2322 San Carols Dr., Pomona, were pushing a disabled vehicle being driven by Celeste Thompson of 1117 Carmanata St., Pomona, when a car driven by Salvador C. Felix, 38, of 10085 Pradera St., Montclair, ran into the rear of the Thompson vehicle.

The impact threw Thompson and Dickson to the ground, injuring them slightly. They were treated at Kaiser Fontana Hospital. Felix was also injured but said he would see his own doctor.

James J. Gonzalez, 19, of 9549 Carrillo Ave., Montclair, suffered minor injuries when his pickup truck ran into a telephone pole on Monte Vista Avenue south of Howard Street, Montclair area, early Saturday morning. He was treated at Doctors Hospital, Montclair, and released.

A 16-year-old Ontario youth suffered head and face lacerations Saturday night when his car southbound on San Antonio Avenue near Yale Street crashed into the rear end of a parked car, Ontario police reported.

Steven Allen Smith of 949 N. Vice St., Ontario, was treated for his injuries at Ontario Community Hospital in Ontario, and later released.

Smith told officers that he momentarily glanced down at his dashboard as he was driving and did not see the parked car.

Heart fitness classes offered at Y this week

A new series in the Pomona Valley YMCA's heart fitness classes will be offered starting this week.

The classes are designed to improve endurance and stamina, the cardio-vascular system, the flexibility of joints and muscular strength.

The YMCA will soon have a fitness testing lab capable of measuring body (fat) composition, flexibility, strength, resting blood pressure, pulse recovery, and other body functions.

The classes will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Cost is $3 for YMCA members and $15 for non-members.

Beginning today, the YMCA will also offer a women's slim and trim class on Mondays and Wednesdays from 8 to 8:30 p.m.

For further information, persons may call 623-6433.

Omnitrans buses will accept exact fare concept this month

The West Valley Transit Service Authority has accepted the exact fare concept and the use of locked fare boxes on all Omnitrans buses.

The recent action of the West End transit group came on the recommendation of its technical committee and Paul Marsh, general manager of the San Bernardino Transit Systems.

March will assume duties as the first general manager of the new Omnitrans system when it is implemented later this month.

The locked recording box will be installed in SBTS buses running in the East Valley soon. It will be installed later on West End buses. The box, according to Marsh, will reduce frequency of robbery, increase safety in driving, eliminate pilfering costs and reduce total operating time.

The boxes to be installed soon in the SBTS buses were purchased several months ago at a cost of $1,480 each. The current purchasing price is $1,550. Marsh estimated that the box pays for itself within three years because of the savings realized.

The WVTSA also directed Wes McDaniel, executive director of the San Bernardino Associated Governments, to request that County Counsel Alan Marks clarify two sections in the joint powers agreement for creation of Omnitrans.

McDaniel is to ask Marks to draft a letter documenting for the future that cities within Los Angeles and Riverside counties may be included in the agreement at a later date, and clarifying the relationship of the local transit service authorities to the Omnitrans board.

The board also: —Asked that City Administrator Lauren Wasserman of Montclair send a letter to Southern California Association of Governments requesting that funds for West End transit be sent to the controller of WVTSA in Ontario, not to Montclair City Hall.

—Set a public hearing for an operating grant under the federal Urban Mass Transit Authority for April 15.

Choral groups present festival

Choral groups from eight Hacienda La Puente junior high schools will present festivals Wednesday and Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Wilson High School in Hacienda Heights.

The groups to perform Wednesday are from Mesa Robles, Fairgrove, Sierra Vista and Orange Grove junior highs. Their program will feature folk and patriotic songs.

Each group will sing two songs and the combined choirs will sing three, ending with "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Orange Grove's choral director Ed Chavez is festival coordinator.

Woodstove chimney may have caused fire

A fire, possibly caused by a damaged woodstove chimney, spread through the walls of an older single-story stucco home this morning in Cucamonga, causing an estimated $5,000 damage.

Foothill Fire District inspectors said the fire was first reported about 12:11 a.m. by the home's occupants. When two engine companies arrived minutes later the fire had pushed its way into the attic and roof of the large home at 8347 Archibald Ave.

Firemen brought the blaze under control in five minutes, but spent nearly two hours putting out hot spots. Fire inspectors said at one point in the fire, the mid-section of the roof collapsed but no injuries were reported.

Inspectors said the fire did approximately $5,000 damage to the structure, but little to its contents.

Firemen said the home was owned by a Mr. and Mrs. Hall. The couple's full names were not available.

Business ethics reach low level

Judging by a continuing parade of stories in the news, the ethics of the American business community are at a distressingly low level.

Some 14 major corporations have been convicted of illegal political contributions and nearly a dozen others are under investigation. The admission by Lockheed Corp. that it paid millions of dollars in bribes to foreign officials or influence-wielders may be only the worst example of what is a fairly general practice.

But the very fact that there is so much public indignation over recent exposures of unethical corporate behavior that has been tolerated for generations "offers hope that our system is actually taking a great leap forward," thinks one businessman.

There is no such thing as an ethical or unethical corporation, points out Frederick A. Collins Jr., president of the Sperry and Hutchinson Co. Corporations are wholly amoral. They are inanimate legal concepts, neither good nor bad. Nor do they act in an evil or corrupt way — only people do.

Having said that, however, he quickly adds that corporate managers cannot evade personal responsibility by claiming sanctuary within the corporate cloak.

"No amount of rationalization can shift elsewhere the consequence of avarice, unrestrained ambition or other personal weakness . . . There is no earthly way to defend bribery, kickbacks or attempts to buy votes."

While bribery, price-fixing, allocation of markets and the like may maximize short-term gains, they are neither inherent in the profit system nor do they, in the long run, contribute to profitability. Simply stated, "bad ethics is bad business."

A better educated and better informed public is demanding an increasingly higher standard of ethical conduct among business leaders, says Collins.

Voluntary compliance with the law, and beyond that, with ethical principles is essential to our democracy and our society, he says. If we do not insist on ethical conduct by all, including people in business, we will eventually lose that democracy and that society.

Nature takes the blame

The record of man's abuse of the environment and of the creatures who share it with him is so glaring that we sometimes forget that not every calamity visited upon nature is the fault of human activities.

For untold centuries, for example, snow geese have been flying between their breeding grounds in northeast Siberia and wintering places in British Columbia, Washington and California. In the last few years, however, a combination of freezing weather at nesting time and the depredations of hungry Arctic foxes have reduced an estimated snow goose population of 120,000 to less than half, says the National Geographic Society.

In one of the first U.S.-U.S.S.R. projects under an environmental co-operation agreement signed by the two countries in 1972, American and Soviet scientists have joined forces to study and protect the migratory birds.

In California, forestry experts from the University of California and the National Park Service are trying to find out what is causing more and more giant Sequoia trees to topple over in scenic park areas of the Sierra Nevada.

Something is bugging the magnificent trees, and it isn't the lumber companies. Unlike the related redwoods, the Sequoias have never been commercially logged. Apparent culprits: root fungus and carpenter ants.

Think on these things

One of my favorite bits of poetry is John Keats' "A thing of beauty is a joy forever . . . its loveliness increases . . . it will never pass into nothingness . . . but still will keep a bower quiet for us, and a sleep full of sweet dreams, and health, and quiet breathing."

When things get a little ugly as they sometimes do, we need something beautiful to tide us over. It doesn't make a lot of difference how despondent or how inhuman the times seem to be, if we can cling to something beautiful, something that feeds us from within, we can clear the difficulty. We have to make the effort to keep our sleep full of sweet dreams, and health and quiet breathing, and not sleep simply to escape facing what needs to be faced.

That great-bellied god

Dear Editor:

I live in a rural area in San Dimas, which I feel is now being threatened by a proposed housing tract. I am not against the land owner or the developer making money or developing the land. I am against the type of development they are offering us. I feel as many of my neighbors do, that this type of development is not compatible with our neighborhood. We live there and we would prefer a development more in keeping with the rural atmosphere and the spirit of individuality now in evidence there.

The encroachment on the rural family is insidious, so gradual we aren't aware it is taking place until it is too late. If we allow this type of development in our neighborhood, the next step is more housing and soon the rural family, along with their horses and farm pets, will be driven out.

I think that it is time for the horse owner to stand his ground. I personally don't want the sterile cubicle type life that these developers offer.

I would miss the sound of horses nickering for breakfast, the first crow of the rooster at dawn, and the tranquility of country living.

A great many of the families in our area are horse owners. They are hard working, tax paying people. They are not on welfare. They, and their horses, are not a drain on society. On the contrary, they supply, at their own expense, without any help from the city or its taxpayers, an outlet for the energies of their children. Horses, and the work that goes with them, keep our children occupied and off the streets. Care of animals gives kids a sense of responsibility. It teaches them coordination and gives them a sense of accomplishment.

Don't sacrifice our kids to that great-bellied god "progress". Instead, give them the room they need to grow, their 4-H projects, their enjoyment of the simple things in life. Give us room to breathe and live the life we choose. Don't cover us with concrete and high density housing. — Mrs. Micaela La Rue, San Dimas

Recall myth exposed

Dear Editor:

It was a revelation to attend last Monday night's board of education meeting in Claremont. After having heard and read many accusations about the February Family-Gram (it allegedly was a "campaign broadside," "one-sided" and "plainly false," according to recall advocates) I learned the Family-Gram was not in violation of any Education Code, it was prepared solely by the district administration without any intention of bias, and contained nothing but true and established facts. Even a CQE representative rather meekly admitted only a couple of "minor differences," one of which was quickly exploded by the superintendent. I am sorry all Claremont taxpayers did not attend the board meeting and see another recall myth exposed. — Sue Harper, Claremont

Government criticism popular

WASHINGTON — In this bicentennial year, it has become as politically popular to attack the government in Washington as it was to attack King George III 200 years ago.

The unlikely revolutionaries of 1976 range from the populist George Wallace to the royalist Ronald Reagan. Even the chief of state, Gerald Ford, has been taking potshots at the government he heads.

They have ample ammunition for their assaults upon the federal establishment. For the bureaucracy has become an encumbrance around the necks of the citizens it is supposed to serve.

Like an amoebic blob that never stops growing, the federal government has continued to expand while most citizens have been obliged to retrench. A dismaying 236 new federal agencies, bureaus and commissions have been created since 1960.

The first priority of every government bureau, of course, is to perpetuate itself. No matter how noble its mission, this invariably takes second place to the needs of the bureaucrats who run the agency.

The mission of the Postal Service, for example, is to deliver the mail. But the postal brass, whose mismanagement has brought the system to the brink of bankruptcy, prefer to cut mail deliveries than executive salaries. Some 300 postal executives are collecting annual salaries higher than $38,000.

Postmaster General Ben Bailar has set the example. He has given himself a raise and, at the same time, has proposed an end to everyday mail deliveries.

The military brass have a special knack for preserving their prerequisites through thick and thin budgets. No less than President Ford has complained, according to confidential White House minutes, that the brass hats deliberately cut military muscle instead of fat when he orders a budget reduction.

They complain loudly over cutbacks in missiles, planes, ships and tanks. But they cling for dear life to their chauffeur-driven cars, golf courses, swimming pools, club facilities and other privileges.

The best measure of the military trend is the great brass build-up. During World War II, 20 full generals and admirals led a military force of 12 million men. At last count, about 40 generals and admirals of full ranks were commanding only two million men.

The story is much the same in other federal offices. Well-paid employees form committees, hold meetings, write memos and conduct seminars. By the time the money trickles down to the intended beneficiaries, little is left.

But there is another story, less told, about another breed of bureaucrat. They are driven by a dedication to the public welfare. These were the bureaucrats who fought the civil rights battle of the '50s and '60s. But for them, blacks still might be kept out of voting booths, schools and luncheonettes.

Bureaucrats brought pressure upon industry to adopt environmental safeguards, compelled the automobile manufacturers to install life-saving seat belts, prevented the oil companies from charging Arab prices for American oil, stood up to the powerful tobacco lobby on the danger of lung cancer.

Who could calculate, for instance, the value of one obscure bureaucratic effort: safety tops for drug containers. It is estimated that these caps have reduced infant aspirin poisoning by 300 per cent.

Even while the presidential candidates argued over busing, bureaucrats at the National Highway Safety Administration were forcing safety standards upon the bus manufacturers. New regulations have been adopted that would compel bus manufacturers to make sure, among other things, that the gas tanks won't explode upon impact.

Irving Pollack and Stanley Sporkin of the Securities and Exchange Commission laid the groundwork that has resulted in today's headlines about illegal corporate payoffs.

Dave Schwartz battled inside the Federal Power Commission against the oil lobby. The Internal Revenue Service's John Moffat refused to buy nearly $1 million in unneeded furniture for the agency's Detroit office. Two Indian Health Service nurses, though it cost them their jobs, complained about the substandard care Indians were receiving in the Southwest.

They are the "closet patriots" — a term coined by the Pentagon's Ernest Fitzgerald, himself a celebrated closet patriot. "They do right when they can get away with it," he explained.

Perhaps the most classic case is the stubborn struggle of an out-of-step, unorthodox naval officer named Hyman Rickover, who wrought a realignment not only of the Navy but of naval strategy.

The son of a Polish pants presser, he hounded, haggled and cut red tape until he had built the world's first nuclear-powered submarine. As a mark of naval esteem he was given a reconditioned ladies' rest room for an office. It was literally in a ladies' toilet that the famed Nautilus submarine was born.

Doc Peirsol Just in jest

This may come as somewhat of a surprise, but records prove that the legal profession has undergone some dramatic changes over the past couple of thousand years. Whether or not for the better, you be the judge. — Manuscripts and historical records dating back to the days of ancient Rome indicate that in those interesting old days, lawyers were forbidden to accept any fees. They were supposed to live on voluntary gifts from their happy clients.

Ford's drift from principles

WASHINGTON — Many old friends of President Ford have been saddened by the line he has taken against former Gov. Ronald Reagan. They feel he is making it increasingly difficult for many Republicans to support him in the primaries.

How accurate this analysis may be is any prognosticator's guess, and little more. What is undoubtedly true is that Mr. Ford's constituency consisted of many who preferred Reagan but who continued to support the President because he was the incumbent.

Mr. Ford has, in effect, written them out of the Republican Party by saying that "anybody to the right of me — Democrat or Republican — can't win a national election."

Since this statement was made in answer to a question about Reagan, its thrust is unmistakable. It was also coupled to a categorical assertion. "I think Gov. Reagan is to the right of me philosophically."

True, the President tried to take this back by saying a few minutes later that what he meant was that though he and Reagan are akin philosophically, they differ in the pragmatics of governmental action — a concept as fuzzy as it was inconsistent.

Before he became President, Gerald Ford would neither have thought nor said those words. Though Reagan expressed his political, economic and philosophical position more gracefully and cogently than Mr. Ford, both men were in general agreement — with Mr. Ford occasionally standing to the right of his present rival.

Had the President been goaded by abrasive or ad hominem attacks from Reagan, it might have been said that what was sauce for the goose is sauce for the Michiganander. But the governor has studiously avoided a direct confrontation with Mr. Ford and, for the most part, limited himself to defining the areas in which he differs with Ford administration policies.

The change in Mr. Ford's thinking has come about since he stepped into the Byzantine political atmosphere of the White House where he has been subjected to the influence of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, and the more left-oriented advisers and Cabinet members. He describes himself now as a "middle of the roader" — a description which Sen. Hubert Humphrey likes to apply to himself.

As to the President's "pragmatics," the record is, a mixed bag. In the conflict between Kissinger and Defense Secretary James Schlesinger, Mr. Ford played to the left-wing gallery by firing Schlesinger instead of making his secretary of state behave. As opposed to this, he had the courage to veto a so-called public works bill which would have contributed to the further impoverishment of the American taxpayer while doing next to nothing for the unemployed.

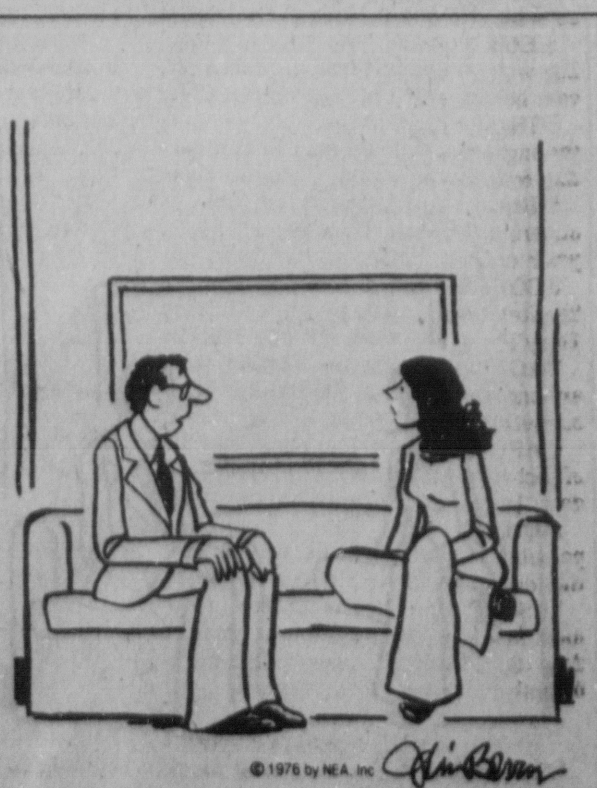

Ironically, the President has made more Brownie points when he has taken actions consistent with his old — and Reagan's continued — conservatism than when he has tilted to the left. And to do him justice, Mr. Ford seemed hardly comfortable with the words about Reagan put into his head by those who now isolate him from old friends and onetime political allies.

To say that Ronald Reagan, who was twice handily elected to the governorship of the nation's most populous state — and one in which liberal Democrats outnumber conservatives — cannot be elected to national office is simply political doubletalk. It echoes the line of the Eastern Establishment media for whom anything to the right of center is rank extremism.

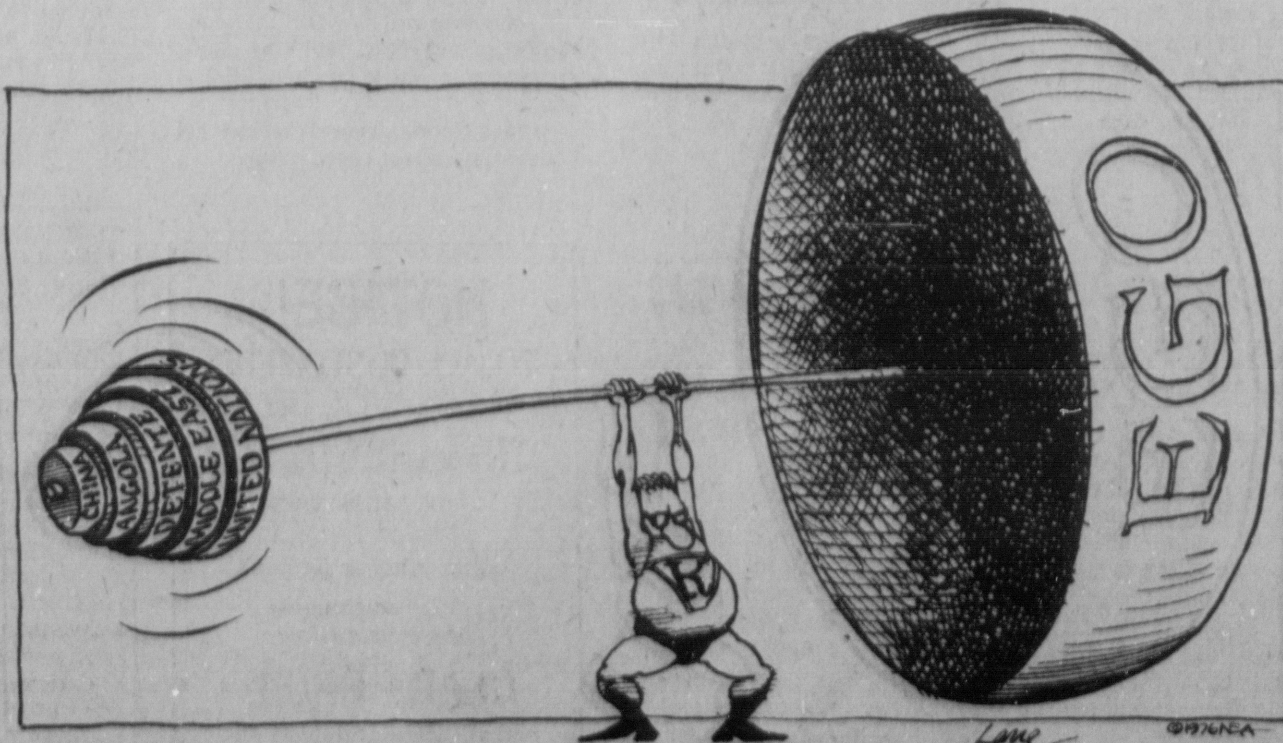

I started out by saying that President Ford's friends were saddened by his attack on Reagan. I offer myself as Exhibit A. I have known Gerald Ford since his early days in Congress. When, at the 1960 Republican convention in Chicago, he launched a campaign for the vice presidential nomination, I was perhaps the only national columnist to give him open encouragement. When he headed a task force of Republican congressmen which studied and reported that same year on America's defense posture and strategy, I worked closely with him — and at my own expense. Latterly, when he has been on the receiving end of political attack, I have come to his support.

There are others, now deeply concerned, who can point to an equally long and more intense record of friendly association. Many of them have remained silent or complained privately as they watched the President's drift from the principles he once enunciated. By speaking out as he did against Ronald Reagan, he has forfeited any further claims on their loyalty.

Increased child support sought

I would like to know if you could get me information on how to obtain more child support for my four children.

Now I am getting $100 a month.

I have been on welfare while working on a part-time job but I now have a full-time job.

My ex-husband claims he does not have a full-time job.

I have seen a lawyer and consulted a legal agency and the District Attorney's Office. None of them have helped me. I can't take my problem to court unless my former husband has a full-time job. I know he has some assets. — L. G., Pomona

As you gave no phone number, we wrote to you asking your husband's name and whereabouts.

You didn't give his name but said he had been arrested on charges of possessing and selling narcotics.

As your family circumstances are changed, we suggested you talk again with the domestic relations staff of the District Attorney's Office and also your welfare social worker about your new status.

Child support cases, formerly handled in West Covina, are now the responsibility of the District Attorney's Office at 436 W. Fourth St., Pomona. The West Covina office has been closed.

If you still feel you need assistance after providing those offices with the current facts and obtaining their analyses of your case, we will try to help.

Two years ago my wife got a new set of teeth from a valley dentist. We paid more than $400 for them.

Last week she had them relined but they don't fit right. She went back but the dentist said there was nothing he could do, that she would have to obtain a new set.

Why can't he correct her set? He made them in the first place. It cost $168 to reline them? — R. O., Pomona

Your letter misled us. You gave us the name of a dentist who had sold his business. Although it still carries his name, he told us, your wife's dental work was done by another man. She confirmed this when we talked with her on the phone.

The dentist whose name you gave us looked up your wife's records.

He said your wife's set was made in 1973. Two adjustments were made soon afterward.

The dentist who made the set, he told us, didn't see your wife again until last October, an interval long enough to cause considerable changes in her mouth.

The verdict was that her upper plate should be relined and her lower plate should be replaced. The work was completed in January and one adjustment was made since then.

He pointed out that the original set didn't cost $400, that your insurance paid $280 of that amount and you paid the rest.

Also, he said the recent work was financed by Medi-Cal and the dentist collected only $87.13, the amount the state allowed, although the bill submitted to the state was $168.

Adjustments have never been refused, either by him or the dentist who actually did the work, he told us. We think your wife should go back to the office again to try for an adjustment which would make her new dentures more comfortable.

Ann Landers

Sulking hubbie won't talk

Dear Ann Landers: I haven't spoken to my husband since New Year's Day because I called his father a bastard and I meant it.

My mother-in-law is one of the sweetest women who ever lived. She had seven children (one dead) and has been terrified of her husband ever since I came into the family, which was 15 years ago. My father-in-law is a bully and a tyrant, demanding and cruel.

As my husband and I were leaving their home (after a four-day visit) I kissed her pale little face and pressed several $20 bills in her hand and told her to get some bottom teeth. My miserable father-in-law leaned over as if to bestow an affectionate kiss on her brow — most uncharacteristic. I then saw him grab her hand and twist her wrist until the fingers opened and he got the money, which he slipped into his pocket. It was then that I looked him in the eye and said, "You are a bastard."

I told my husband that next month I am going to arrange a dental appointment for his mother and take her personally. He did not reply. In fact, he hasn't spoken to me since because he says I insulted his father. What is your opinion? — Upset

Dear Upset: I find it interesting that your husband is more concerned with the name you called his father than the ruthless manner in which his father treats his mother.

The best way to handle Mr. Lockjaw is to ignore his silence. Speak to him pleasantly and overlook the fact that he doesn't reply. Like a spoiled child, he will start talking when he's ready. In the meantime, bless you for being so kind to his mother.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you have lots of serious problems to tend to so I'll just take a few minutes of your time. A good friend of mine who is highly intelligent and beautifully philosophical (but a terrible cynic) said something last night that made a real impact. He uttered four words that stopped me dead in my tracks. "Hell is other people."

I thought about it for a long time and decided he was right. Do you agree? — Old Moldy

Let's join the letter bugs

Like most well-run government agencies, the U.S. Postal Service is losing money faster than the clerks can open our tax envelopes, but even for Washington bureaucrats this year's postal deficit was an eye-opener — a cool $1.5 billion! That's almost as much as Catfish Hunter makes.

No one is more distressed by the problems of the financially troubled agency than the post office brass, but every attempt to economize results in anguished yelps from the taxpayers whose services are threatened. Howls went up when the agency closed 180 post offices. Growls were heard when the postal department proposed ending special delivery. And when the letter men decided to close rural post offices, 40 Congressmen filed suit in federal court to block the closings. Everyone wants to economize — at the expense of the other guy.

Now post officials have proposed cutting mail delivery to three times a week. This would be irksome to many people, possibly painful to business and industry, but all it would mean for me was waiting till tomorrow for a load of Occupant mail, advertising circulars, market ads and overdue bills. I can wait! I can wait!

Another notion of the post office squirrels is to launch a nationwide campaign urging people to write more letters. With the cost of postage stamps having recently jumped from 8 to 13 cents, that urging is going to fall on a lot of deaf ears. (Remember penny postcards? Gone the way of the nickel Coke and the five-cent cigar.)

J. T. Ellington, senior assistant postmaster general, says that in 1972 the average household mailed 3.8 pieces of first class mail per week. It dropped to 3.2 in 1974 and is now down to 2.6.

Washington's men of letters estimate that a 5 per cent increase in personal correspondence would bring in $150 million annually. That's stamp-lickin' good.

So let's get with it. Let's all help the postal department by dashing off a few letters, all write?

"Dear Eddie, you old sonofagun! How the are you these days? Still drinking that cheap bourbon? The bottle-scarred veteran, ha, ha!"

"Dear Aunt Martha, Many thanks for that lovely scarf you knitted for me on my birthday six years ago. I have worn it often and always think of you with warmth, ha, ha!"

"Sweetheart — Yes, I do miss you, but you must STOP calling me at the office. My wife is getting suspicious. Your Snookums."

"Dear Dr. Jencks: Just a note to assure you that I will soon get around to paying your bill — though it does seem rather steep. How's your golf game these days, ha, ha!"

"Dear Mr. Davidson: I have always tried to be a good neighbor, but if your mutt — er, dog doesn't stop digging up my petunias, I see no alternative but to invoke the law. Sincerely, etc."

"Dear Junior — I'm sorry to learn that you are flunking Chemistry II and Medieval History. I advise you to start buckling down — the term is nearly over. As for the extra $20 you 'desperately need,' I'm afraid you'll have to do without it until you get your grades up. Love, Dad. (P.S. How's your English? You misspelled 'desperately.')"

Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds.

Link hormones to personality

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if a hormone imbalance can cause emotional disturbances in a woman under 30 years of age. I know this can occur during the menopause and patients are given hormone pills. If this is true, how could I go about finding out if a hormone imbalance exists. Can you tell by a pap smear? Please let me know because I believe I have a hormone imbalance.

DEAR READER — Your glands may affect your personality and your personality may affect your glands. That statement is not limited to sex hormones but they certainly are included in it.

I have seen patients with psychotic episodes associated with an overactive thyroid. At the other end of the spectrum we have a condition called myxedema madness which refers to the personality changes or dementia that can occur in individuals with severe advanced low thyroid function.

Similarly one can see patients with psychoses which may be temporary in association with taking cortisone and other adrenal cortex hormones.

Sex hormones can affect one's behavior. Male hormone tends to make men more aggressive. Estrogen tends to increase a woman's femininity and receptiveness although this response is more noted in animals below the level of the human.

Emotional disturbances often occur at the menopause time but whether they are specifically related to a hormone imbalance or not is often open to question. There are many other factors going on at this phase of life. Such emotional disturbances are frequently not helped by the administration of female sex hormones.

The problem is complicated by the inadvisable practice of giving female hormones to women with emotional disturbances which are not really related to the menopause at all. Many menopausal symptoms overlap the kind of symptoms associated with anxiety and depression problems. The clinician must be alert to separate the two conditions

About this, that

There were 779 local and long-distance telephone calls for each man, woman and child in the United States in 1970.

The first United States gold coins were struck in 1795. The last appeared in 1933.

Jacoby's bridge

Greed's a horrible thing

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Jim: "If you don't like the bidding of today's hand, you can't get into an argument with me. I didn't bid it and I don't like it."

Oswald: "How about the play?"

Jim: "It was quite interesting. See if you can figure out how South got greedy and managed to go down at four hearts against a deuce of clubs opening?"

Oswald: "Let's see. He won the club with his queen and cashed the three top trumps. After that start he could run off dummy's clubs in order to discard his spades and make five odd. I suppose he tried for six."

Jim: "He sure did. After cashing the three top trumps, he took an immediate diamond finesse. It worked because good old East didn't take his king. Then South cashed the clubs while East chucked a spade. He ruffed a spade, led a diamond, finessed again and watched the defense take the rest of the tricks since East produced the king, pulled the last trump and led a spade."

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know what a forcing pass is.

A typical forcing pass occurs on a sequence such as one heart-one spade-two spades-double-pass.

The two-spade call was a cue bid and when fourth hand doubled the opening bidder elected to pass to tell his partner to show something more about his hand. Lots of other passes are supposed to be forcing but take care. Some partners forget and fail to respond.

Deserted wives serve cocktails

Consider those Oriental girls who married American soldiers in Japan, Korea, and Vietnam. Researchers at the University of Illinois chose to find out what such wives feared most. Desertion was what. It's what they were warned about, repeatedly, by the pessimists. And it's what happened to so many of them, too. Our Love and War man says a considerable proportion of this country's cocktail waitresses now are deserted wives of Oriental extraction.

Among pandas, the male is more shy than the female, the female more energetic than the male. That, say the zookeepers, is the only way they can tell the difference.

Don't forget, most fish have seven fins.

RECORDS

Q. "As a guitar-picking musical composer of no renown, I ask how many single records of my songs will I have to sell to break even?"

A. About 12,000, it's said. And if you put out an album, you'll need to sell about 35,000. That's if you get fair prices on production.

You know how almost all people gesture with their hands when they talk? You'd think it might have something to do with making the conversation clear. Evidently not, though. It's instinctive, I'm told. Blind people do it, too.

File the name of Arnie Williams, please. He's the southern California fellow who taught a lot of Indians how to shoot bows and arrows. So they wouldn't look too clumsy at it in the movies.

TRAFFIC

Car traffic in Lagos, Nigeria, got pretty bad last year. Streets were so jammed up that drivers started cutting across sidewalks, vacant lots, yards, wherever. The government called out the troops and armed them with horsewhips. Correspondents say soldiers stopped straying cars, pulled the drivers from behind their wheels, and punished them on the spot with an unprescribed number of lashes. At last report, a whole batch of new traffic courts were being opened up there.

That ice better be at least four inches thick, if it's expected to support more than one skater.

The record indicates about 40 per cent of the policemen in this country hold down second jobs . . . Silver City, Idaho, is another of those rare western communities where you can see a two-story outhouse . . . It's a matter of record, too, that old Emperor Nero used to send runners on foot all the way up to the Alps to get snowcones.

Piano recital set at Bridges

Bonita Ford, a student at the Claremont Graduate School, will present a piano recital in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 8:15 p.m. March 19. Admission is free.

The program will include Sonata No. 2 by Hindemith, Ravel's "Valse Nobles et Sentimentales," Stravinsky's Serenade in A, and Sonata in B Minor by Chopin.

Miss Ford, originally from Mexico City, graduated from Pomona College in 1973. She received her master's degree in psychology at CGS last June.

LE BRUN IN 'BREL' — French songstress Denise Le Brun stars in the musical, "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris," at the California Theater of Performing Arts, San Bernardino, at 8:15 nightly through Saturday. The production is offered by the San Bernardino Civic Light Opera Association.

Hal Shane

PVCCA books singer

Hal Shane, singer, dancer, and guitarist, will perform in Spring Auditorium, Ontario, at 8 p.m. March 19, the final program of the season for the Pomona Valley Community Concert Association.

The association has just successfully completed its 1976-77 season membership drive. New members may obtain free admittance to this last concert as a bonus by showing their receipt for membership in the 1976-77 season. Mrs. Stuart Brockway, campaign secretary, said that, while no single admissions for the concerts are sold, persons who were out of town during campaign week and who wish to join the association may do so at the box office the night of the Shane concert. Subsequently membership will be closed until next season.

The concert attractions for which contracts have been completed are by the Obernkirchen Children's Choir, Thomas Schumacker, pianist, the Montagna Trio (clarinet, cello and piano), and Lords' International, music and marionettes for adults.

Luncheon meeting planned

Upland Woman's Club will entertain members of the press when the group meets for luncheon at noon, Tuesday, at the clubhouse.

Dr. Ed. Rockey will be the speaker. His topic will be "I Never Said That." The speaker is professor of behavioral science at the School of Business and Management, Pepperdine University.

Program for the March 23 tea at 1:30 p.m. is "American Heritage." Mona West, owner of Mona's Patchwork Corner in Upland, will present, display and explain techniques and types of fabrics conducive to quality quilting.

A member of the club, Mrs. Roby McKee, on behalf of the club recently presented three watercolor paintings to the Rains home; two to the Museum of Chaffey Communities Cultural Center.

As a project for the remainder of the club year, the membership will assist in providing students at Cottage School with various needs.

Joyce Brothers Rock music appeal

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I have a teenaged daughter whose only interest in the world seems to be going to rock concerts and listening to records of rock singers. What disturbs us is that so many of the young men she idolizes look more like old-fashioned prostitutes than they do like men, or even boys. My husband is afraid this indicates that somehow she's sexually maladjusted and abnormal. — V.H.

Dear V.H.: According to Dr. Herb Goldberg, a psychologist, rock music, its heroes and the life style it has helped to create are important and accurate reflections of today's emerging sexual consciousness. This concentration on blatant sexuality is often focused on what seems to many adults to be bisexual individuals. This may be the result of young people's desire to break down the old rigid sex roles that were limiting to both male and female.

For example, the male sex hero of today bears no resemblance to the tough, rough, virile figure of yesterday. He is much more likely to project a kind of bisexual flavor, and like many rock singers, he may be decorated with sequins, bracelets, and shimmering necklaces. The fact that your daughter is delighted with this type of performance in no way indicates that she is abnormal or sexually maladjusted herself.

Another point that Dr. Goldberg makes about many of today's rock performers is that it is no longer exclusively the female who sexually taunts and tantalizes the male; it is much more likely to be the male who plays with the sexual desires of the female.

For many teenaged girls, rock music provides a kind of outlet for their emerging sexual desires. In spite of what we've heard about the groupies who follow the male musicians around from place to place, for the vast majority of young girls, a rock concert, although stimulating, still provides a certain safety through distance. In other words, they can be moved by a performer, they can scream and express their appreciation without having to come into any direct contact with this person. They are saved from having to make any decision about how far to go with him because he is really more of a fantasy figure.

If these fantasy heroes seem homosexual to your husband, it is because he did not grow up in the unit-sex period, with the strict division between the sexes breaking down. This is not necessarily unhealthy. It allows males and females to express themselves more freely without worrying about whether or not their desires fit into a rigid pattern. A boy or man today does not feel that it is unmanly to show emotion or even to weep in public, and he certainly does not feel that wearing a bracelet or beads makes him less masculine.

If your daughter is aware of your disapproval of rock music, it may be part of its strong appeal to her. It might be better if you ignored or accepted her feelings about her dream-heroes so that she would not be tempted to use this to demonstrate her rebellion to prove her separate identity. Hopefully, her interests will enlarge to include many other areas, but this is more likely to happen if you do not ridicule her present choice of music or heroes.

JOHNNY WONDER

A mummy, as you know, is a dead body that has been preserved, or kept from decaying. The ancient Egyptians believed that the dead lived on in the next world, and that the life of the soul could not go on if the body were not preserved after death. To protect the soul, the Egyptians carefully preserved the mummy by drying it in special solutions and wrapping it with many layers of linen. The wrapped mummy was usually placed in a decorated coffin made of wood or stone that was often shaped to look like the mummy itself. The mummy in its coffin was then placed in a tomb, along with food, clothing and many other objects the spirit of the dead person would need in the new life. The walls of the tomb were decorated with pictures and texts which told the story of the person's life. The mummies with their tombs and furnishings, help tell us how the Egyptians must have lived centuries ago. A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Richmond Research Team Discovers 'Enriched Flavor.'

MERIT taste secret found by isolating key flavor ingredients in cigarette smoke, then adding them to tobacco.

In Richmond, Virginia, there's an eight-story building that houses the main Research Facility for Philip Morris.

Around the company they call it the Tower. It's here that pure research in tobacco yielded what might be the most significant smoking advance since the filter.

It's called 'Enriched Flavor.' It comes in the tobacco of a new kind of low tar cigarette. MERIT.

Only 9 mg. of tar. Yet with astonishing flavor.

If you enjoy a full-flavor cigarette now — but would like to find a low tar smoke with a taste you can switch to and stick with — you'll be interested.

Key Flavor Ingredients Of Tobacco Isolated

'Enriched Flavor' was developed by "cracking" cigarette smoke down into its basic ingredients, and isolating special key units that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

'Enriched Flavor' is extra flavor. Natural flavor. Flavor that can't burn out, can't fade out, can't do anything but come through for you.

We packed MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor' and began a series of taste tests.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

Thousands of filter cigarette smokers tested 9 mg. tar MERIT against five current leading low tar brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.*

The results were conclusive:

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much — or more — taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now you've got the cigarette.

MERIT. Incredible smoking pleasure at only 9 mg. tar.
